

We build memories one moment at a time!

"These days, our parents may live a thousand miles away and our brothers, sisters, aunts, and cousins may be scattered all over the country. Sure, we'll call to catch up every once in a while, email when we get a chance, or send the obligatory holiday cards. But the sad truth is that many families find it difficult to share the details of their lives. Yet it is through sharing of our lives that we build the bonds of family. By sharing our day-to-day activities, our aspirations and struggles, our family stories, we develop intimacy with each other, give others insight into our lives and gain insight into theirs."

With today's technological advances and just a little effort, you could be in constant touch with your relatives sharing memories and creating new ones to last a lifetime."

Quote from "Memories of a Lifetime – How to collect and share your personal and family experiences published by Lifetime Press (Lifetime Television, 2003)

Kids.doc

Grows with your family!

From birth to senior moments, www.kidsdotdoc.com will record those precious memories and keep them safe for your family.

The story behind Kids.doc

A Dream Comes to Reality

Our family had a dream of creating an electronic Baby Book when our Nicky was born. As we talked about what content should be included in the application, it became very clear there was a need for so much more than the original inspiration. As we worked on Kids.doc and as the years have gone by, technology and social media have finally caught up with our vision!

Finding the Right Balance

There is so much we want to share about our families, but there is also much that we need to keep private. Our goal is to reach the optimal balance between our pride and the need for privacy. Being able to invite family and friends into a shared experience is the goal of Kids.doc. However, keeping health information, immunization records, certain family histories along with other private data that shouldn't be shared with the world is critical.

The Design Process

When we designed Kids.doc we determined there should be family accessible pages and password protected areas. This gives you the option of determining what information you wish to share and what you want to maintain as private.

Kids.doc Grows as Your Family Does

One feature of the Kids.doc web application we want to stress, is the idea that as your family grows so does your family historical archive. From the time your child is born to his wedding, you will be able to record the small as well as significant events of his life. But it doesn't stop there. We have a utility that will copy all of the core family data and then just his entries; in order to create his new family record! By the time your son is a grandfather there will be four generations of family moments being shared with your descendants!

Who Are We?

We are an ordinary working class family living and employed all over the globe; Nevada, Washington, Maine, Wisconsin, Texas, England and Afghanistan!

Mrs. Brown, founder of the firm was driving from Seattle, WA to Portland, OR in May 1996. It was late at night while driving on I-5 when she wondered if her new grandson had a baby book yet for his parents to keep their memories and mementos fresh in their minds. So you might say Nicky is the inspiration. Then when Ashlee was 5 3/4 years old she sent a drawing to her Oma and our logo is from that drawing. All of our family members have contributed and been actively involved in creating Kids.doc.

This is one way we share every day moments with each other. We invite you to do the same!

Visit www.kidsdotdoc.com to learn more about creating your personal family archive.
A new social media network that allows sharing when you want and privacy where necessary